DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's Amendment filed on 5/03/2005 has been entered. Claims 27, 35, 44, 45, 51 and 65-67 have been amended. Claims 1-26, 34, 40, 50 and 52 have been cancelled. No claims have been added. Claims 27-33, 35-39, 41-49, 51 and 53-71 are still pending in this application, wherein claims 27, 44 and 45 being independent.

Priority

2. This application filed under former 37 CFR 1.60 lacks the necessary reference to the prior application. A statement reading "This is a continuation of Application No. 08/723,853, filed 30 September 1996." should be entered following the title of the invention or as the first sentence of the specification. Also, the current status of all nonprovisional parent applications referenced should be included.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. Claims 27-33, 35-39, 41-49, 51 and 53-67 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shaffer et al (US Pat No. 6,130,935) in view of London (US Pat No. 5,590,184) cited by Applicant, herein after referred as Shaffer.

Regarding claim 27, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, a method of providing a work-at-home telecommunication service, the method comprising:

(a) receiving a dialed number from a calling party, said calling party being associated with a calling party identification number (col 1, ln 57-col 2, ln 6).

(b) automatically modifying the calling party identification number to an identification number of a group associated with the calling party (col 1, ln 57-col 2, ln 6 and col 4, ln 28-41).

Shaffer differs from claimed invention in which it does not teach the method of passing of the calling party identification number of the group associated with the calling party. However, London teaches the method of passing a modified calling party identification that modified from number to the called party, wherein the modified calling party identification is modified from the calling party's actual telephone number (see col. 1, ln 61-col. 2, ln 25). Therefore, integrating London's teachings into work-at-home system of Shaffer would have been obvious for providing the called party the true nature of the call and protecting the calling party's privacy.

Regarding claim 28, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, the method further comprising the step of receiving a service specific code from the calling party (col 3, ln 8-38).

Regarding claim 29, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, the method further comprising the step of receiving a vertical service code from the calling party (col 3, ln 8-38).

Regarding claim 30, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, the method further comprising the step of receiving an access code from the calling party (col 3, ln 8-38).

Regarding claim 31, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, the method further comprising the step of receiving a personal identification number from the calling party (col 1, ln 57-col 2, ln 6).

Regarding claim 32, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, wherein step (b) further comprises the step of sending a query to a service control point, the query comprising the calling party identification number (col 3, ln 39-61).

Claims 33, 41-43, 53-54, 60, 62 and 65, they are rejected for the same reasons as recited in the rejection of claim 27.

Regarding claims 35 and 51, Shaffer teaches the invention substantially as claimed, with the exception of providing the step of sending the modified calling party identification number to a called party associated with the dialed number in response to a failure of receiving a privacy access code from the calling party . However, it is obvious that Shaffer et al suggest that in response to a call made to a non-virtual network called party, the only ANI associated with a work-at-home agent is translated (modified) into a number of a group and this translated (modified) number is sent along with non-virtual network called party number to an IEC that routes the call to the recipient called party (col 3, ln 39-61). London teaches a number modified from caller identification number is sent to caller-id display unit associated with called party (Abstract and col 3, ln 8-42).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to use the Caller-ID service as taught by London that enables the combined system of Shaffer to send the identification of business group in place of the agent's identification to a recipient called party.

Regarding claims 36 and 57, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, wherein the dialed number comprises a private virtual network number (col 3, ln 24-38).

Regarding claims 37 and 56, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, the method of further comprising the step of translating the dialed number to a called party identification number (col 1, ln 57-col 2, ln 6 and col 4, ln 42-65).

Regarding claim 38, Shaffer teaches the invention as claimed, the method of further comprising the step of determining a telecommunication carrier for the group associated with the calling party (col 3, ln 24-61).

Claims 39 and 58-59, they are rejected for the same reasons as recited in the rejection of claim 38.

Regarding claims 44-45, 55, 61, 63-64 and 66-67, there is provided by Shaffer a system which comprises appropriate means for carrying out the method according to claim 27.

Claims 46-49, they are rejected for the same reasons as recited in the rejection of claim 28.

Claims 68-71, they are rejected for the same reasons as recited in the rejection of claim 35.

Response to Arguments

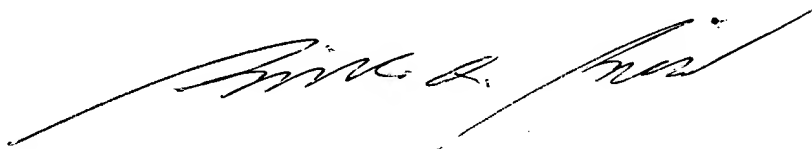

4 Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 27-33, 35-39, 41-49, 51 and 53-67 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
